

How To Cut Your Own Hair

Introduction

For the people who are willing to try new things and to cut their own hair at the comfort of their own home while saving a few dollars. The Following instructions include the required tools, beginner tips, and what to expect, the general guidelines for just shortening the hair. Please adjust your needs based on personal preference accordingly and document is not responsible for any damage that caused by personal disaster!

Required tools

For starters, make sure you have prepared light-weight shears, hair comb, a hand-held mirror, cape that can cover you up, cordless clippers, and different sizes of clips

Warning

Firstly, you would want to go slow, since there's no other ways to repair the area that you already chopped off. Also, your hair is already wet, then it would look shorter when it becomes dry. It's recommended only cut your hair when it's dry so you can get a better idea of what the final look will be. If you have straight hair, you can cut while it's wet or dampen it with a spray bottle first to get the cleanest, sharpest lines possible.

Quick Start

Bundling up the part that you don't want to get cut would be a good idea, which gives you the space and freedom to work on the other part and reduce the chance of your mess-ups. Also don't cut to the length you want the end result to be at first — start smaller and work your way up,

General Rules

Depends on whether you have long hair or short hair, curly hair or straight hair, the directions that you choose to cut through might also vary. For general guideline, the best practice is to turn your back on your bathroom mirror while one hand holds another small mirror facing the bathroom mirror. Furthermore, the way you hold your sections and scissors can greatly impact how the at-home haircut will turn out. You should pull the hair straight upward with your fingers because it's the easiest way to make sure hair length is even overall. Then, place your scissors parallel to the hair peeking through your fingers and snip hairs vertically rather than straight across.

Style For Personal Desire

For people that just want to shorten their hair, all they need might be just a pair of scissors. For the long straight hair, all you need to do is to stand in front of the bathroom mirror, and grab the desired length you want then cut it with your scissors. Keeping your fingers and comb level, use your chosen scissors – ideally sharper than kitchen ones – and trim the ends of your hair using a point technique. This the end of the hair that is anchored between your fingers with the tip of the scissors.

Mistakes that people that run through

The biggest mistake people make when trying to scissor cut their own hair? Grabbing a section and cutting straight across.

not get the ideal haircut you wanted the first couple times (wig or hat is always an option). Moreover, you might also need other people or your barber's help if you want something more stylish or flashy instead of simply shortening your hair. However, it's a skill set that people should learn at modern times and it will grow better than you expect as you put into more practice. Below is a summary for general guidance for future reference purpose!

TIPS FOR CUTTING LONG LAYERS IN YOUR OWN HAIR

LESS IS MORE
Cutting off less is smart for beginners

HAIR CUT WET SHRINKS
Hair cut wet shrinks when it dries

EXPECT LESS THAN PERFECT
Be mentally prepared for a less than perfect outcome

THICK HAIR TAKES LONGER
Not a 10 minute and you're done job

BOTH SIDES EVEN STEVEN?
Cut then compare to make sure it's all even

THICK HAIR? CUT SMALLER SECTIONS
Super thick hair? Cut in smaller sections

CUT WITHOUT A SOUND?
Hear the cut? Then your scissors aren't sharp enough

[terrifictresses.com]